Steel: The only choice

Steel contains no bi-products and is 100% recyclable, making steel a sustainable material choice for your home. The design flexibility of steel ensures a seamless blend with all architectural styles, from the new home build to a contemporary renovation or historical restoration.

The structural integrity of steel ensures consistent and long time performance, with minimal maintenance required. Narrow sightlines maximise the opportunity for light to filter through your home whilst providing an elegant focal point.

How to measure for your new door

Equipment : Tape or laser measure.

Handy Hint : Always measure the door opening rather than the door itself.

Tight width and height door measurement:

Measure inside the rebate of your door jamb, as this is where the door will fit.

Width: Measure the opening width at the top, middle and bottom of the door opening*. Measure from left to right, inside the rebate.

Height: Measure the opening height at the left and right hand sides of the door opening*. Measure from the floor/threshold upward to inside the rebate.

\ If there is a difference in measurements, take the smallest measurement.*

Actual width and height door measurement:

Deduct 12mm from the tight width measurement and 12mm from the tight height measurement. This will provide you with the dimensions to determine your required door size.

Note: The tolerance deduction is dependant on the door jamb material and hardware - if you are unsure please seek clarification by contacting Metro Lifestyle or an industry professional.

Care & Maintenance

Steel is a naturally durable material which lends itself to being low maintenance, however regular care and maintenance of your steel frames is required.

It is recommended that all hardware, frames and glass undergo periodic inspections when cleaning.
